

Weetangera School Writers Festival

Friday 1- Friday 8 September August, 2017

We are all looking forward to the 2017 Writers Festival. Students will be participating in a range of writing experiences within their classrooms. In addition to these activities, please refer to the program to view the exciting and inspiring learning experiences that have been planned for all students from P-6.

Weetangera School's Writing Festival 2017

LEARNING INTENTIONS

- To engage everyone in authentic, fun and inspiring opportunities to write
- To develop our identities as writers and connect with real authors and illustrators
- To go beyond the basic skills of literacy.

Guest Speaker Biographies

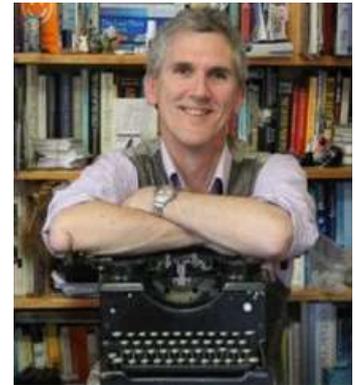

Marc McBride is an Irish children and young adult's book illustrator. He illustrated a series of books titled Monster, which has earned the nickname as The Monster Illustrator. He has illustrated paintings, images, pictures, drawings and book covers. He has also worked on various illustrations and cover artwork for the books the Deltora Quest fantasy series, which he has said is the books he likes illustrating for the most.

Craig Cormick is a well-known parent at our school and also a prolific author. Craig will spend time with each unit sharing writing tips and his love of the written word.

Nicole Godwin is a local author and ex parent who is visiting our school to talk about her picture book Ella which is about elephant conservation.

Cath Blake is a primary school teacher who took this year off work to write a book. Her recently completed historical novel, 'Clarinda and Henry' is based on her great, great grandparents and their lives in England and Australia in the 1800s. It has only recently been submitted to publishers and she plans to self-publish if it is not accepted.

Mike Kisby is an ex-student of Weetangera School who has just published his first book, Magic. We look forward to Mike sharing his experience as a writer with us.

Thank you to all of our staff for organising such an inspiring Writers
Festival
